

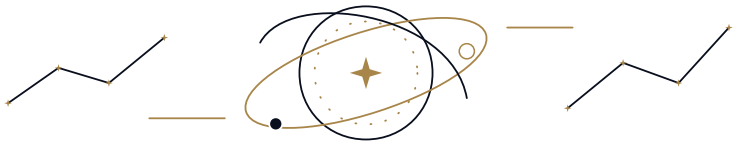
The lunar nodes

For Alex

12 MARCH 1992 · 09:40 · ROME, ITALY

Sample

ASTROMERIDIA



CHAPTER 1

The lunar nodes

The lunar nodes are not planets but points: the two places where the Moon's path crosses the apparent path of the Sun. They always sit directly opposite each other, forming an axis that runs through your birth chart. Astrologers have long read this axis as a story of growth, with the South Node describing what feels familiar and the North Node pointing towards what you are learning to develop.

This report uses the true node, the position that follows the Moon's real motion rather than an averaged one. You will find a reading of the axis by sign, a reading by house when your birth time is known, and notes on any planets sitting very close to either node.

Nothing here describes a fixed path. The nodes speak of tendencies and invitations, and you remain free to decide how, and whether, to answer them.

In brief, your nodal axis contrasts a set of comfortable, well-practised skills with a direction that may feel newer and a little uncertain. Neither end is good or bad. The South Node holds gifts you can rely on; the North Node shows qualities that bring a sense of meaning when you cultivate them. The sections ahead describe this balance in detail and highlight any planets that colour it. Notice also how your daily choices lean: towards the comfort of the South Node, or towards the stretch of the North.

CHAPTER 2

♑ From private roots toward visible responsibility

North Node in Capricorn

With the North Node in Capricorn and the South Node in Cancer, your axis moves from the private world towards public responsibility. You may be deeply caring, attuned to family and comfortable in the role of nurturer. Sensitivity, loyalty and protective instincts come easily to you.

The invitation is to step into authority and to build something in the wider world. Setting goals, accepting responsibility and holding yourself to standards can feel cold at first, especially if you are used to being guided by feelings. There may be a tendency to retreat into the safety of home or to rely on others for direction.

Growth here means developing structure, discipline and self-respect. Your career, a long-term project or a role of leadership can become a place where you mature. Learning to manage emotions without suppressing them is part of this journey.

Your Cancer warmth remains a precious resource. You will continue to care and to sense what others need. The difference is that your care gains a backbone. When you combine empathy with responsibility, people often trust you deeply, and your achievements carry a humane quality that sets them apart. Setting a five-year goal, finishing a qualification or accepting a leadership role are clear ways of honouring this direction.

A path toward intimacy and transformation

North Node in the Eighth House

With the North Node in the eighth house and the South Node in the second, your growth lies in intimacy and transformation. You may value security, comfort and your own possessions very highly. The invitation is to share more deeply: emotionally, financially and psychologically. Letting others in, accepting change and exploring hidden dimensions of life can feel risky but also renewing. Your practical sense remains useful as a foundation, while depth and trust gradually become new sources of richness in your experience. Therapy, deep friendships or honest conversations about money and desire may be important arenas for this work. Each time you allow something to end gracefully, you may notice that something more alive has room to begin, often in ways you could not have planned.

♃ The path and confidence support each other

Jupiter trine North Node

A gentle cooperative link or easy flowing link from Jupiter to your nodal axis is often read as a supportive link. Teachers, travel or new learning may help you grow, and you might find that opportunities arrive when you follow your sense of meaning. Optimism tends to come easily here. Staying grounded and grateful ensures that this generous influence expands your path rather than scattering your energy in too many directions.

Looking ahead

The nodal axis is one of the most reflective themes in astrology. It does not tell you what will happen; it offers a lens for looking at your habits, your comfort zones and the areas where you feel quietly drawn to grow.

Working with the nodes is rarely about abandoning the South Node. Its talents remain yours, and you will keep using them. The aim is balance: letting what is familiar support you while you take small, deliberate steps towards the qualities of the North Node.

You might choose one idea from this report and observe it over the coming weeks. Notice when you fall back into old patterns and what happens when you try something different. Growth along this axis is usually gradual and personal, and you are the best judge of its pace. Return to these pages whenever you feel at a turning point.

This report is intended for entertainment and personal growth. It describes tendencies and potential based on your birth chart; it does not offer predictions or guarantees about what will happen, and it should not be used to make important decisions in your place. It is in no way a substitute for medical, legal, financial or psychological advice: for questions of this kind, always consult a qualified professional.

Geographic data: GeoNames, licensed under CC BY 4.0. Data filtered and processed by us.

Ephemerides: NASA/JPL (Development Ephemeris DE440s). Calculations made with Skyfield.

Typefaces: Cormorant Garamond and Manrope, both licensed under the SIL Open Font License 1.1. Cormorant Garamond: Copyright 2015 the Cormorant Project Authors (github.com/CatharsisFonts/Cormorant). Manrope: Copyright 2018 The Manrope Project Authors (https://github.com/googlefonts/manrope).

Reading references

These references document the calculations used in the reading. The ° symbol denotes the angular distance in degrees from the exact alignment.

The path and confidence support each other
Jupiter trine North Node · 1.5°